Bush Stands by Claim of “Weapons of Mass Destruction”

Washington, D.C.-In a press conference today, President George W. Bush, commonly referred to as “Dubya”, announced that he still believes that there are “weapons of mass destruction” somewhere in Iraq. “The Liberals don’t want you to believe me, but I do. I personally know personally that there are weapons of mass destruction in Iraq.

How, you may wonder, do I know for sure that Iraq has them? Because my daddy told me so.” The president then went on to add, “And he should know. He was the president before I was.” He then returned to the Oval Office where he enjoyed a bottle of Jack Daniels and a few tacos while watching “Little House on the Prairie.”

Democrats Still Searching for “Hopeful”

Washington, D.C.- As the 2004 election draws nearer, the Democratic party is still scrambling to find a presidential candidate who is worth a damn, that may stand a chance to upset the four-year reign of the Republicans in the White House. Lieberman, Dean, Gephardt, Kerry, Edwards, Sharpton, Graham, Braun, and Kucinich are the main contenders, none of whom could “tell their ass from a hole in the ground,” says Wilber Jameson, a 72 yr old Dixiecrat from Bacon County, Georgia.

If the people of America were as shallow as everyone gives them credit for, then North Carolina Senator John Edwards would win simply because, “he’s cute,” says Erica Maynard of Asheboro, NC. Critics agree that Edwards is charismatic but is “so far left, his own people would rather see a mildly conservative Jew (Lieberman) in office.”

Former President Clinton is reported to be waiting by the phone for a plea from the party to come back and give them a chance to regain the White House. Sources say he has even stated, “Once you’ve beaten one Bush, it just comes sorta’ natural.”

New Reality Show Scheduled

Hawaiian singer/entertainer Don Ho was divorced by his wife several months ago. When asked why she wanted a divorce, she commented that she was tired of getting derogatory comments. But Don isn't wasting any time as a bachelor. He's just signed a contract with FOX for a new reality show to find himself another bride. The show will be called "Who Wants To Be a Ho?" It will air Thursday nights at 9 on your local FOX station.

Sweet Sister

The Rock World was shocked Tuesday evening when Aerosmith leader Steven Tyler announced in a press conference that he and Carly Simon were twins separated at birth. And it should come as no surprise that the two are both illegitimate children of Rolling Stones front man, Mick Jagger.

KISS Retires Again

The long time rock band KISS has announced that they will be starting a retirement tour...again. The tour is scheduled to begin two months after this year's tour with Aerosmith. Other bands that will be traveling on this retirement tour include the Allman Brothers, the Who, AC/DC and Motley Crue, all of who have also planned to retire after this tour.

Elton Crowned

Sir Elton John was bestowed yet another honor when he was crowned "Queen of Rock & Roll." "Freddie Mercury would have gotten it," says President of Quinessential United English Epitomes of Recording (QUEER), "but he's dead." Other runners up included Boy George, George Michael, and Gary Cherone.

Genetic Breakout Star?

Stockholm-Genetic scientists in Sweden yesterday, announced that they have made a breakthrough in trying to genetically engineer the "World's Greatest Pop Star." They took an egg generously donated by Britany Spears and combined it with DNA from the late Barry White and the reclusive former "King of Pop" Michael Jackson. They plan to release a demo tape of the results within the next couple of weeks.

The same scientists are also trying to create the "Dirtiest Pop Star" by combining DNA from Christina Aguilera, Marilyn Manson, and ♀ formerly known as the Artist, formerly known as the Artist formerly known as Prince, formerly known as Prince.

SPORTS

Lewis Back in Action

The day everyone has been waiting on since 1985 has finally arrived. Saturday night will have the greatest boxing match ever as Emmanuel Lewis (TV's Webster) and Gary Coleman (Different Strokes) square off in the ring. Coleman is expected to win the bout due to his recent violent streak but some are holding out for Lewis to be the victor. It is being promoted as "The Biggest Fight of the Century" - no pun intended (who are we kidding, of course there's a pun intended, Ed.).

This fight is only available on Pay Per View and is a benefit show for all child stars who were screwed out of their finances by their parents.

Someone "Puts an Eye Out"

During Sunday's game on the Hooters Tour, a man's eye was actually put out by a Hooters Girl. 53 yr old golfer Devin

Brinks was standing too close to

Adrianna Cherry, 21 of Wilmington, NC, when she whacked the ball a little too low and the tee lodged into Brinks' eye. "I've always been told I could put an eye out with these," said Cherry, "but I never thought I would do it on a golf course." Brinks was rushed to the hospital after the accident and will have to wear an eye patch for the next 2 weeks. "I've always wanted to be a pirate, now at least I look like one," he said pointing to his patch. He also says that from now on he will wear sunglasses while on the golf course. Adrianna felt so bad that she had the entire staff visit him in the hospital with three dozen wings and plenty beer for everyone in the room.

Dale Jarrett has Ugly Car

This may not come as surprise to most people, but the ugliest car in NASCAR belongs to Dale Jarrett. According to comedian Tim Wilson, it's uglier than "the Elephant Man in bowling shoes with a chili vomit stain, or french-kissing that poor woman from Throw Momma From the Train." Fans say they don't mind, as long as there's another commercial with George Thorogood.

In a related story, also according to Wilson, NASCAR Champion Jeff Gordon is "Gay." Fans say just because his nickname is the "Rainbow Warrior" shouldn't be any indication to his sexual preference. Longtime Gordon fan Mary Anne Collins from Dothan, AL adds, "I think he's hot."

MLB Sanctions New Team

The All-American pastime has a new team for the continually diminishing crowds to not go see. The Peoria Pissants in Illinois will begin playing in 2004. Construction is still in the works for "The Mound", a $2.3 billion state-of-the-art stadium to be the homebase for the Pissants. The name was won in a legal battle from the Tallahassee Termites who said they thought of the name first.

by Average Joe

(Disclaimer-the feelings and words expressed in this column do not reflect the views of this company...well, not all of us.)

Call me a conspiracy theorist if you want, but I'm a little worried about other countries attacking our nation. Now

I'm not talking about anyone overseas, I'm concerned about our neighbors to the north and south. That's right...Mexico and Canada. They're too damn quiet! I believe that they are secretly working together to pull an "Anaconda" style attack ala Gen. Winfield Scott. Mexico has already started its "Silent Invasion" by pouring thousands of immigrants over our borders each year. And Canada...well...I'm sure they're just waiting for the right time to attack.

Now, several measures have been taken to thwart the Southern assault. One of them being sending American jobs to Mexico. If it's jobs they want, then it's job they get. This plan does have its drawbacks however...like Americans losing jobs. But what is the cost of freedom? I say, better lose the job to them there than here.

And Canada...well...I'm sure they're just waiting for the right time to attack.

Just another friendly reminder, this paper is a parody, satire, lampoon, spoof, etc. It is not meant to be taken literally. Any similarities to anyone living, dead, or in a coma is purely coincidental...except of course for the celebrities and political figures who are comically exploited in this publication.

Oh...and thanks for reading.

Travel

The West Virginia Department of Tourism has decided to change the state's motto. In order to sound more like the their neighbor's "Virginia is for Lovers," the new West Virginia motto will be "West Virginia is for Cousins." Critics say that this isn't really a catchy slogan, it just hurts the reputation of the state which is constantly being joked for its inbreeding practices.
